Policy for late work: All papers / assignments should be turned in on the designated due date. Late papers will receive a 5-point deduction if they are turned in one-day late. Each subsequent day will receive an additional 10-point deduction. No exceptions.

Exams: There will be three exams in this course with a cumulative final exam during finals week. Exams will be a mix between multiple choice and free response questions. You will need to bring SCANTRON sheets and pencils for the exams. The exams will cover the book, lectures, slides, presentations, and handouts. Outside of university requirements, I will not give make-up exams. However, the lowest exam grade (including the final) will be dropped.

Class activities/participation: There will be various negotiation activities and role-plays/simulations that will be conducted during class time. Homework assignments: Various negotiation role-play preparation and activities will be completed outside of class. The deliverables will range from reflection writings, documented interactions with classmates outside of class, and questions on assigned readings. No late assignments will be accepted.

Capstone role-play: You will engage in a complex, multi-issue negotiation in teams of 4-5 people. The deliverables include pre-negotiation planning papers as well as a post-negotiation reflection paper. To assure that group work is distributed and performed fairly, you will also grade each of your team members and they will grade you as well.

Classroom etiquette:

- No use of any electronic devices in class, including phones, tablets, and computers.
- If you are asked to leave the class because of your classroom etiquette, you will be marked as missing the activity/participation grade for that entire class.

- In order to maintain fairness and equity, do not negotiate with me! Grades, course requirements, etc. are off limits.
- All behavior during role-plays is “real.” You make choices about the way you behave, but you must be willing to live with the consequences of those choices. Please behave appropriately.
